KEYNOTES

MONDAY, MAY 18

8:45-9:45 AM

True Success: The Art of Achievement in Times of Change

What does it take for new levels of success in the face of challenge? From 40 years of research across global wisdom traditions and modern forms of success, Tom Morris, author of True Success, The Stoic Art of Living, and The Art of Achievement, has identified seven universal conditions for sustainable achievement. His “7 Cs of Success” have fueled results in personal and professional success across industries around the world. In a talk Morris has delivered to global client firms and CEOs, he shares fundamental tools for personal, team and organizational achievement and provide a practical guide for their use every day.

Tom Morris of the Morris Institute for Human Values

Tom Morris is chairman and CEO of the Morris Institute for Human Values. Tom, who lives in Wilmington, has given over 1,200 presentations in the U.S. and globally including companies such as General Motors, Deloitte and Bank of America. The author of more than 30 books, Morris speaks on change, leadership and innovation.

KEYNOTES

TUESDAY, MAY 19

8:30-9:30 AM

The Nichification of News

In an era of fragmented audiences and AI-driven disruption, Axios has built a growth strategy rooted in focus, premium audiences, and bold bets on local journalism. In this keynote, Jacquelyn L. Cameron, Chief Revenue Officer of Axios, shares how the company is navigating the splintered media landscape – from niche audience strategy to rethinking revenue and redefining its role in an AI-shaped future.

Jacquelyn Cameron of Axios

Jacquelyn L. Cameron is the chief revenue officer at Axios. In her role, Jacquelyn oversees all revenue within the organization, including building complex and performant partnerships with brands, and driving consumer revenue through ticketing and membership. She also oversees the Axios Local division, which boasts local news coverage in 34 markets (Chicago, Miami, Denver, etc.). Previously, Jacquelyn was senior vice president at the WP and global head of the public affairs division at the New York Times. Jacquelyn worked alongside Axios founders Jim VandeHei, Roy Schwartz, and Mike Allen during the first six years of POLITICO.

EDITORIAL

SESSION 1: 10-11:00 AM

Narrative Newsletters: A case study

Ashley Fahey of The Charlotte Ledger

The Charlotte Ledger's managing editor, Ashley Fahey, offers insight into how the publication has built a loyal readership through its narrative-style newsletter. Founded in 2019, The Charlotte Ledger was created with a focus on delivering deeply reported, context-rich business journalism in a format designed for direct engagement: the inbox. Rather than relying solely on traditional article structures, the Ledger leans into storytelling—often weaving together reporting, analysis and voice in a way that feels closer to a conversation with readers than a standard news brief.

SESSION 2: 11:30 AM-12:30 PM

Digging Into Bankruptcies

Maria Chutchian of Bloomberg News Industry Group

All you need to know to cover bankruptcies, from finding the documents you need to identifying the key people involved and getting information from them. Plus, how to cover local and regional angles for reporting on large retail bankruptcies.

SESSION 3: 1:30-2:30 PM

Best Ideas

Moderated by Cece Nunn of Greater Wilmington Business Journal

Share your Best Ideas from the past year with your peers. Please submit a best idea in advance to participate in this session so we get ALL of the best ideas. Forms will be emailed to attendees.

SESSION 4: 3-3:45 PM

Where Business Meets the Beat

Jessica Quinn and Greg Bordonaro of Hartford Business Journal, Mitch Bettis and Hunter Field of Arkansas Business / Moderated by Peter Van Allen of Mainebiz

Learn how top business publications blend smart business strategy and journalistic excellence. From awards to power lists and other revenue-generating initiatives, panelists from two publications will share how to balance business goals with editorial priorities — even when tensions arise — to produce great journalism and foster connection. This discussion will set the stage for an interactive session on best practices and concerns.

EDITORIAL

SESSION 5: 3:45-4:30 PM

Making Big Topics Feel Local

Moderated by Arthur Thomas of BizTimes Milwaukee

Affordable housing. Workforce shortages. Trade and tariffs. These issues affect every community, yet coverage can feel repetitive or stalled. Learn new ways to localize major topics, uncover fresh angles and make slow-moving stories relevant right now. Also: When the national spotlight turns on your region, how do you cover it?

SESSION 6: 9:30-10:30 AM

AI Editing Tools for Journalists

Mike Reilly of The Journalist's Toolbox

Free editing tools to boost efficiency. Work with prompts for Large Language Models (LLMs) and Custom GPTs to clean up copy and write SEO-driven headlines. Hands-on session with take-home exercises to bring back to staff and practice with.

SESSION 7: 11-11:45 AM

Data Journalism

Mike Reilly of The Journalist's Toolbox

Data scraping web pages with Google sheets, scraping PDFs with Tabula and PDF to Excel, building graphics with Flourish studio. Interactive workshop on laptops.

SESSION 8: 11:45 AM-12:30 PM

Whiteboard Session

Moderated by Brad Kane of Worcester Business Journal

Wrap up the editorial track sessions by sharing your questions and answers on what's working, what's not working and what's next! Prompts could include the best operational tips and tricks.

SALES

SESSION 1: 10-11:00 AM

Recruiting and Retaining the Next-Gen Sales Workforce

Robert Hawthorne of Hawthorne Search

Executive recruiter Robert Hawthorne of Hawthorne Search will share insights on hiring trends shaping media and publishing, with a focus on attracting, hiring, and retaining Gen Z talent. Attendees will leave with practical ideas to strengthen their recruiting pipeline and build next-generation sales teams.

SESSION 2: 11:30 AM-12:30 PM

How a Consultative Sales Approach Helps Media Sales Teams Win

David Arkin of David Arkin Consulting

The most successful media salespeople don't start by pitching products. They start by understanding what the advertiser is trying to accomplish. In this session, we'll talk about why a consultative approach works so well in local media and how asking better questions can lead to stronger relationships and better campaigns.

SESSION 3: 1:30-2:30 PM

Leading High Performance Sales Teams

Eric Mayberry of Smart Tech Digital Agency

In this session, veteran media executive Eric Mayberry, formerly of Lee Enterprises, will share practical leadership strategies for building and sustaining high-performing sales teams. From communication plans that clearly define messaging and expectations to the authentic conversations that shape strong sales cultures, Eric will outline approaches leaders can implement immediately. Attendees will gain practical insights they can apply right away to improve performance, strengthen communication and accountability, and change the culture within their sales organizations.

SESSION 4: 3-3:45 PM

How Sales Teams Are Using AI to Work Smarter

David Arkin of David Arkin Consulting

Many of the most useful applications of AI have nothing to do with writing content but are rather fits for sales teams who can use the tools to manage leads, prioritize prospects, understand their sales funnel and follow up with advertisers more effectively. The focus will be on simple workflows and ideas that sales teams can start using right away, regardless of what CRM or systems they use.

SALES

SESSION 5: 3:45-4:30 PM

AI in the Day-to-Day: Streamlining Sales Processes & Sales Marketing

Angela O'Kray of Insight on Business

How are sales teams actually using AI in their day-to-day work? In this practical panel, sales leaders from AABP member publications will share real examples of how tools like ChatGPT and Google Gemini help streamline proposal creation, customize pitches, and automate repetitive tasks. Attendees will gain honest insights into what's working and simple AI workflows they can start using right away.

SESSION 6: 9:30-10:30 AM

Best Ideas

Craig Snow of Greater Wilmington Business Journal

Our most popular session of the conference! Hear from your fellow AABP sales staffers about the best ideas from the past year! Attendees are strongly encouraged to submit an idea in order to attend this session as we want ALL of the best ideas. Leave this session with a digital copy of the 2026 Best Ideas Book.

SESSION 7: 11-11:45 AM

Leading Without Losing Yourself

Bonnie Jacoby of Arkansas Business

Sales leader burnout is very real in media organizations, especially for directors carrying revenue pressure, team emotion, market change, and constant forecasting stress.

SESSION 8: 11:45 AM-12:30 PM

Sales Whiteboard: Challenges & Opportunities

Marsha Luedtke of Corridor Business Journal

This interactive session invites attendees to bring their current sales challenges and opportunities to the table for open discussion and peer problem-solving. The group will brainstorm ideas, share experiences, and capture key insights live as themes emerge. Participants will leave with practical solutions, fresh perspectives, and stronger connections with peers across the industry.

INNOVATION

SESSION 1: 10-11:00 AM

The Power of Partnership

Tom Morris of the Morris Institute for Human Values

Tom takes us back to some important ancient ideas about the transformative power of partnerships, some of which animated the great founders of our nation and that we need now more than ever. This talk is full of insights to help you make both your business and your community more creative and healthy places of positive partnership, where people work together creatively for the greater good.

SESSION 2: 11:30 AM-12:30 PM

Best Ideas

Contribute your innovative ideas around events, audience development, cost savings or something else your company has created!

SESSION 3: 1:30-2:30 PM

Roundtables for the Win!

Connie Greenblatt of Florida Trend and Michael Curran of Ottawa Business Journal

Several AABP publications have evolved roundtable discussions to serve as flywheels for intriguing editorial content, new sponsors and deeper relationships with top executives.

SESSION 4: 3-3:45 PM

Reinventing Events

Marty Goodnight of Springfield Business Journal and Suzanne Fischer-Huettner of BridgeTower Media

A deep dive into how you can potentially do fewer events with more impact to your audience and bottom line.

INNOVATION

SESSION 5: 3:45-4:30 PM

Leveraging Leadership

Vicky Janowski of Greater Wilmington Business Journal, Jim Kirk of Crain Communications, Chris Conetzkey of Des Moines Business Record

A roundtable discussion with several AABP publications that have significantly enhanced their offerings and diversified revenue by running leadership programs for their communities.

SESSION 6: 9:30-10:30 AM

Rethinking the Metrics That Matter for Audience Growth

David Arkin of David Arkin Consulting

Changes in search and social algorithms are reshaping how audiences discover journalism, making traditional traffic metrics less reliable as the primary way to measure success. In this session, we'll explore what those shifts mean for publishers and how media companies can start focusing on the right things to measure. We'll look at the metrics that matter today — including engagement, loyalty and direct audience relationships — and how editorial teams can align around them.

SESSION 7: 11-11:45 AM

Digital Metrics and Paid Subs: Finding Growth

Michael Curran of Ottawa Business Journal, Leah Allen of New England Business Media, Eric Shanfelt of Nearview Media

Get access to new AABP digital benchmark data. Listen to AABP members share their paid subs growth stories. PLUS, expert tips related to automations and other growth hacks.

SESSION 8: 11:45AM-12:30 PM

Re-Engaging Legacy Categories: How We Repositioned Healthcare to Grow Our Top Advertisers

Marty Goodnight of Springfield Business Journal

Hospitals are a core advertising category for many business publications — but in many markets, those relationships have plateaued or become transactional. This session will walk through how Springfield Business Journal (and other markets) re-approached the healthcare category with a fresh perspective, leading to meaningful growth from our top one and two advertisers.

WILMINGTON INSIDER TIPS

See the suggestions below from the team at Greater Wilmington Business Journal.

MUST-DO ACTIVITIES FOR FIRST TIME VISITORS

Horse-drawn carriage tour through Wilmington's historic district downtown

– Lindsay Podraza, Media Coordinator

Kayaking tours are beautiful around here! (Kayak Carolina is a great local group.)

– Alexis Power, Marketing Consultant

The Carolina Beach Boardwalk has authentic vintage beach charm - an arcade, candy and ice cream, the beach, dive bars, bougie bars, Ferris wheel, restaurants and some of the best people watching in the region.

– Suzi Drake, Art Director – Editorial

BEST WAY TO FILL A COUPLE HOURS

Walk or run The Loop, a 2.5-mile circle in Wrightsville Beach that goes past marshes, the park and Intracoastal Waterway.

– Vicky Janowski, Editor

Walk the Riverwalk and visit the Battle-ship North Carolina across the river.

– Rob Kaiser, Publisher

If you want to venture outside of downtown, Castle Street, the Brooklyn Arts District and the Cargo District are also fun areas to explore with some great restaurants, breweries and shopping!

– Emma Dill, Reporter

MUST-TRY RESTAURANTS IN WILMINGTON

Seabird! I always love splitting the seafood tower with some friends.

– Cierra Noffke, Reporter

Circa 1922 — Great atmosphere and staff and the best filet mignon I've ever had!

– Tara Sestanovich, Media Coordinator

TOP LUNCH SPOTS

Tower 7, Solstice Kitchen and Cocktails, Fish House, Blueberry's Grill, Famous Toastery, Oceanic, Cargo District

– Jessica Maurer, Director of Feast Wilmington

BEST COFFEE SHOPS

Drift Coffee – Cece Nunn, Managing Editor

Hidden Grounds and Ibis

– Jillian Hon, Marketing Consultant

BEST BAR OR COCKTAIL SPOT

On Wrightsville Beach, Shark Bar and Kitchen (a 15-minute walk from the hotel), 22 North, and Lagerheads, the quintessential beach dive bar! When you're downtown, take a detour to the South Front District and take in the vibes at the Satellite Bar and Lounge. Also, when you're at a local restaurant, order our best regional IPA, Tropical Lightning, from Wilmington Brewing Company.

– Craig Snow, Senior Citizen Marketing Consultant

He also serves as the publisher of Arkansas Business, the state's business magazine.

Greg Bordonaro is editor of the Hartford Business Journal (HBJ). He joined HBJ in May 2008 after graduating from the University of Connecticut with degrees in journalism and history. Greg holds an MBA from the University of Hartford and was named editor in 2013. His work has been recognized by the Alliance of Area Business Publications and the Connecticut Society of Professional Journalists.

Maria Chutchian is a New York-based journalist who oversees bankruptcy coverage for Bloomberg Law's corporate news team. Before joining Bloomberg Law as an editor in 2022, she spent nine years reporting on large corporate and municipal bankruptcies for several publications, including Reuters, Law360 and Debtwire. Some notable cases she covered include Purdue Pharma, Boy Scouts, Caesars Entertainment, Detroit and Puerto Rico. Prior to her shift to legal and financial journalism, Maria was a local news reporter in and around Boston.

Chris Conetzkey is president and group publisher of Business Publications Corp., the locally owned media company behind the Business Record and dsm Magazine. He began his career as a reporter at the Business Record in 2009 before he spent a year at ESPN working for College GameDay. He returned to the Business Record and spent 14 years in the organization serving as the Business Record's editor, publisher and BPC group publisher. A graduate of Iowa State University's Greenlee School of Journalism, he currently serves on several community and industry boards, including the Iowa Newspaper Foundation, the Area Alliance of Business Publications, and Urban Dreams. Chris lives in Des Moines with his wife, Kaci, and their two children, Kohltin and Kohlette.

Michael Curran publisher of the Ottawa Business Journal and the president of Great River Media, its parent company. He joined OBJ in 1999 as its editor, helping to launch related media brands, online products, awards programs and events. For OBJ, Michael oversees all its media products, notably its authoritative quarterly publication, its breaking news website OBJ.ca, OBJToday email newsletter, social media, podcasts and special projects such as the Book of Lists. Michael is the principal organizer of well-known local business awards programs, such as Forty Under 40 and CEO of the Year. In 2010, Michael partnered with local entrepreneur Mark Sutcliffe to buy OBJ from TC Media, making OBJ a locally owned media company once again. He is married to Catrina and a father of four.

David Denor is the president and publisher of Florida Trend, the highly regarded statewide magazine and website read and visited by business executives, government officials and civic leaders. As publisher, David's responsibilities include direct oversight of Trend's editorial, sales, marketing, digital, audience development, creative, production and business operations. He leads the company's continued growth in the areas of new digital products, audience development efforts, specialty annual supplements and the ongoing curation of custom content. David is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where he earned his Bachelor of Science, majoring in criminal justice. He and his wife Jessica, an elementary education teacher at Discovery Academy of Science, a public charter school in Clearwater, have four adult children. David and Jessica reside near the Indian Rocks Beach area.

Ashley Fahey is the managing editor of The Charlotte Ledger. She is an award-winning journalist who has been based in Charlotte for nearly a decade. Ashley was most recently managing editor of national content at American City Business Journals, where she also authored a national real estate newsletter. Before that, she served as real estate editor and reporter at the Charlotte Business Journal. Ashley is a graduate of Elon University.

Hunter Field is the editor of Arkansas Business, where he manages a staff of six reporters along with several editors and researchers. Before joining the statewide publication, he was a founding editor of Arkansas' only statewide nonprofit newsroom, the Arkansas Advocate. He spent eight years at the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette, where he was a reporter in the state Capitol bureau before becoming the newspaper's investigations editor. He began his career covering sports in Memphis, Tenn., at the Commercial Appeal.

Suzanne Fischer-Huettner is the managing director for BridgeTower Media's East Division. Suzanne oversees a powerhouse portfolio of business publications, including NJBIZ, The Daily Record (MD & NY), Central Penn Business Journal, Lehigh Valley Business, Long Island Business News, Rochester Business Journal, and SCBIZ. Since joining The Daily Record in 1996, Suzanne's career has been defined by "firsts" and rapid scaling. In 2010, she made history as the first female publisher in the company's 122-year history. Her knack for identifying untapped markets led to the creation of a premier events division, launching programs such as Top 100 Women, Health Care Heroes, Forty Under 40, and Most Admired CEOs. Today, Suzanne specializes in integrating acquired brands into the BridgeTower family, transitioning legacy titles into high-performing digital and event-driven media hubs.

Marty Goodnight is a business media executive, operator, and growth strategist focused on building platforms that inform, connect, and elevate the business community. He is the owner and publisher of Springfield Business Journal under SBJ Media. With a background spanning legacy media, modern B2B marketing, and revenue leadership, Marty brings a practical, operator-first mindset to his work. He believes a strong business journal plays a critical role in a community—providing reliable, objective reporting that helps leaders make informed decisions, while also creating a platform where businesses can be seen, understood, and grow. Marty is committed to advancing the role of trusted local media—protecting the integrity of journalism while building modern, sustainable models that support business growth and regional progress.
